RESPA Final Rule Became Mandatory Jan 1, 2010!

Are You Ready? – Free Webinar

Attn. Real Estate Department,

The RESPA Final Rule became mandatory January 1, 2010. Regardless of whether we like it or not, RESPA reform requires ALL residential closing professionals to make major system and practice changes. Lenders are now required to use the new GFE form. When loan originator issues a GFE on the new form, the settlement agent must use the new HUD-1 form and the tolerances and the other requirements in the revised RESPA regulations becomes applicable.

It is important for real estate attorneys, paralegals, legal assistants, real estate brokers, settlement agents and title companies to fully understand the adjustments necessary to comply with the RESPA Final Rule, as well as how to prepare new HUD forms.

To help you and your staff get ready for RESPA reform, Easy Soft, a leading provider of HUD software with over 10,000 active program users, is offering a special 1-hour live RESPA webinar –free.

We'll cover all the RESPA Final Rule essentials that affect residential real estate closings. You will also learn how simple use of technology can help you automate your closing process; and show you how, once the HUD is prepared, balancing the closing, ledger statement, check printing, trust accounting and 1099-S reporting can be completed, ALL in less than five minutes.
